

New River Valley Small Business Resiliency Grants

INTRODUCTION

The Counties of Floyd, Giles, Pulaski, and Montgomery have jointly established a regional $1.6 million grant fund, known as the New River Valley Small Business Resiliency Grant to support the region's small business recovery and resiliency efforts following the COVID19 outbreak. Funds for these grants has been provided by Virginia's Department of Housing and Community Development as part of a Community Development Block Grant award to assist localities mitigate the impacts of COVID-19 on the regional economy. Due to this funding source, we are unable to offer grants to businesses based in the towns of Blacksburg and Christiansburg, as well as the City of Radford.

Grants of up to $15,000 are being provided to eligible businesses within the region to offset business impacts. This grant program will be administered by Giles County, on behalf of its neighboring communities, under the oversight of a regional Application Review Committee and Project Management Team.

GRANT GUIDELINES

Each business must complete and submit a grant application attesting to information and guidelines.

Resiliency Grants up to $15,000 per business for rent or mortgage, eligible supplies, or equipment, from March 12, 2020 to the application date.

Only one (1) grant per business establishment/location will be awarded.

Copies of receipts or paid invoices for eligible expenditures must be presented in order to obtain funding.

Grants will not be awarded for specific expenses already covered by funds received from other sources.

Applications will be accepted now and awards will be made until funds are exhausted.
